CVE case to get special prosecutor

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA — Lawrence County Attorney Michael Hogan said during a district court hearing Wednesday that he will willingly withdraw from prosecuting a case involving a Kentucky Commercial Vehicle Enforcement officer charged with misdemeanor assault.

A July 3 hearing is scheduled for CVE officer Darvin Marsillett, who is charged with fourth-degree assault in connection with a Feb. 21 arrest in Lawrence County in which the owner of three coal trucks, Bobby J. Adkins Jr., was cited for traffic violations and additionally charged with multiple offenses, including assault of the officer and obstructing governmental operations and the trucks were impounded.

Marsillett's attorney, C. David Mussetter of Catlettsburg, filed a motion asking that Hogan be replaced by a special prosecutor due to a conflict of interest. On Tuesday, May 21, Hogan filed a response in which he accuses CVE officials of using "Gestapo-type tactics." Hogan previously said he planned to prosecute the case against Marsillett.

"I don't see that there is a conflict of interest, but I will willingly withdraw myself from the case," Hogan said in district court Wednesday. "I have a meeting with the attorney general's office, and when there is a decision on who will prosecute the case, Mussetter will be notified."

In his written response to the motion for a special prosecutor, Hogan said facts "concerning the county attorney's involvement in this case clearly demonstrate that there is no conflict of interest warranting recusal."

"First and foremost, the defendant's version of the facts on Feb. 21, indicate that the involvement of the undersigned (Hogan) on the day in question was after the complaining witness had been arrested and transported from the scene of the PAINTSVILLE – Paintsville's new tourism executive director, Wendi VanHoose, wants people to learn more about the Mountain HomePlace and to see how important it could be to the future of tourism in Johnson County.

Mountain HomePlace, which opened in 1995, offers families a place to experience a lifestyle as it was in days gone by and to learn more about local history.

Employees at the Mountain HomePlace also dress in authentic clothing from the period and do chores, such as the feeding of animals and gardening at the farm from April through October.

Plowing is done the old-fashioned way — using a horse — and many of the tools from the 1800s are used on the farm.

Tourists can also see candle making, weaving, cooking, canning, and feeding and petting some of the animals.

Jury says 50 years for meth defendant

by Lilly Adkins

LOUISA – A Lawrence Circuit Court jury recommended a 50-year prison sentence after convicting a Louisa man last week of manufacturing methamphetamine.

Formal sentencing for Arnold Moore, 39, who was convicted last Wednesday, is scheduled for June 28.

According to information on file in the Lawrence County Circuit Court Clerk's office, the jury originally recommended 15 years for the manufacturing methamphetamine charge and an additional three years for possession of a controlled substance charge, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Jurors, after learning that Moore is a persistent felony offender, enhanced the recommended sentence to 50 years.

Moore was represented by public defender Greg Griffith, and the case was prosecuted by Commonwealth's Attorney Anna Melvin and Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Kim arrest," Hogan's response said. "Therefore, it is impossible for Mr. Hogan to be a witness to the events surrounding the case charged herein. However there are multiple other allegations and innuendos strewn about in the unverified motion that attempt to present a scenario warranting appointment of a special prosecutor without one citation to legal precedent."

In the motion requesting a special prosecutor, Hogan is asked to recuse himself due to a conflict of interest and the motion also talks about the incident on Feb. 21, when Marsillett and other CVE officers made a routine traffic stop on a tractor trailer owned by BJJR Trucking Inc. of Fort Gay, W.Va., and were performing a level 2 federal safety inspection on U.S. 23 in Lawrence County.

"During the course of the inspection an individual came upon the scene and climbed upon the stopped commercial vehicle and was talking with the operator," the motion said. "The Mr. Adkins named individual was instructed to leave the area on several occasions by two different uniformed officers. Marsillett warned Adkins that he needed to return to his vehicle and leave the inspection site before he went to jail. Adkins became irate and began cussing and stated that he was not going to go anywhere. Marsillett instructed Adkins to turn around and put his hands behind his back. When Adkins refused to comply, Marsillett put his hand on Adkins arm to turn him around, he began swinging at the officer attempting to hit him in the face with his fist, but missed and struck him in the shoulder. Adkins was restrained and taken to the ground and placed in handcuffs without further incident.

"After getting Adkins to a marked patrol car, he stated he was sorry for what he had just done and that he was an idiot for doing it. Adkins stated he was stupid for trying to fight with the officer, and asked if they would just let him go and start over, that it was his fault. After getting Adkins into the car, Marsillett asked his name and he stated his name was Bobby Joe Adkins Jr. The officers contacted the KSP Post and advised them of the altercation and asked that a supervisor be dispatched to the scene. Sgt. Nathan Day arrived and talked with the officers and then Adkins."

The motion says that when Day returned to his vehicle, a female pulled up behind him and exited her SUV, demanding to know what happened and what was going on, claiming to be the owner of the stopped commercial vehicles.

"The female was instructed, she needed to return to her vehicle and leave the scene," the motion says. "After the female left, another vehicle pulled in behind Day and a male subject exited the vehicle and became irate with Day who directed the male subject to get back in his vehicle and leave the scene of the stop. Marsillett left the scene of the stop and transported Adkins to the Lawrence County Sheriff's Office and turned him over to the Lawrence County Jailer for transport to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center. Marsillett arrived back at the scene approximately 10 minutes later."

The motion says that a white Jeep pulled in behind Day at a high rate of speed and an unknown male, dressed in shorts, ball shoes and a jacket, got out of the Jeep and became "very loud and irate" with Day. The man was later identified as Hogan.

"Marsillett exited his patrol car and walked back to see what was going on. As he approached, the male subject stated that he was in charge and that the officers were going to let all the stopped vehicles go and the guys who were driving the stopped vehicles were going to drive them away and no citations would be issued," the motion says. "The male subject warned that if his directive was not followed that things were going to get really bad for the officers. He then turned toward Officer Marsillett pointing his finger in his face stating that it was going to get even worse for him."

The motion says that Hogan stated "he would see that all charges were dismissed in such a way that Marsillett would get sued," and Day told Hogan that "he was not going to be making threats toward his officers."

Day told Marsillett to go back to his vehicle and he would take care of the situation, the motion says.

Marsillett returned to the stopped vehicles and completed the level 2 inspections, the motion says.

"In an attempt to make good on his threat that things were going to get real bad for the officers, without notice to KSP, Hogan obtained an Exparte Order, without a hearing, releasing the impounded vehicles which were the subject of numerous safety and legal violations. Hogan also attempted to obtain an arrest warrant for Marsillett on Friday afternoon after hours, without fully advising the Court of all the pertinent facts surrounding the stop," the motion says. "A number of KSP, CVE Officers appeared at Adkins initial arraignment in District Court to ensure the charges were not improperly dismissed by the County Attorney's Office. Adkins was subsequently indicted for third-degree assault by a Lawrence County Grand Jury, which found there was probable cause to charge him."

The motion also talked about an interview Hogan did with The Big Sandy News in which he said Adkins' wife had contacted him by cell phone seeking assistance for her husband and he said he would take care of it and that his idea of taking care of it was to get Adkins released. Hogan also said during the interview that Adkins lived in the same subdivision and that their children had attended Trinity Christian Academy together.

"Hogan's extraordinary actions and unusual conduct in the case clearly demonstrate that he is prejudiced in this matter and that he and other members of his staff are likely to be material witnesses in the proceedings," the motion said. "Attempting to influence the actions of law enforcement officers and making threats against them for carrying out their duties in an effort to assist a neighbor who had been cited for violation of the law is not in keeping with the duties and responsibilities of the County Attorney's Office."

Hogan argues in his response that the legal standard is that a prosecutor has the responsibility of a "minister of justice and not simply that of an advocate."

"Prosecutors are given broad discretion in determining what cases to charge, trial tactics, grand jury proceedings, plea negotiations and appellate review," Hogan's response said. "Indeed numerous cases involving racial profiling, abetting police brutality, corruption, political repression and subornation of perjury."

Pursuant to S.CR 3.130(3.8), Hogan said "A prosecutor shall refrain from prosecuting a charge that the prosecutor knows is not supported by probable cause."

"This became the undersigned's job and duty on the date that he involved himself in the illegal and unwarranted impounding of commercial vehicles," Hogan said in his response. "Prior to the arrest of the complaining witness, Bobby J. Adkins Jr., he and his wife Amy arrived at the scene to present documents to the commercial vehicle enforcement officers to prove they had the necessary insurance, UCR sticker and registration. However, the officers refused the paperwork offered to them as proof. They even refused to look at it when told by the County Attorney that he could obtain a copy for them. The reasons the documents were refused can only be speculated as to why. However their Gestapo-type tactics on that day leave no doubt that their goal was to impound the vehicles in question and to cause as much financial pain as possible to Adkins, his company, family and employees."

Hogan said he views his standing up for people in this situation as simply his doing his job and that no American citizen should have their property confiscated when it is legally operating.

Hogan also said in his response that further charges against Marsillett were initiated only after an independent inquiry by his office and an interview of an eyewitness who "unequivocally stated" that Marsillett, without provocation, slammed Adkins to the ground, which was taken in conjunction with what Adkins had already stated had occurred.

Hogan added in his response that he is a neighbor and that their children go to school together, but that Louisa is a small community and if he were required to recuse himself from cases involving neighbors or individuals who have children in the same class or school, a special prosecutor would be necessary in about 75 percent of the cases in Lawrence County.

Compton.

Griffith, on behalf of Moore, attempted in February to have evidence in the case suppressed, but the motion was denied by Judge John David Preston.

An October 2011 press release issued by the Lawrence County Sheriff's Office said Moore and another man, Rodney Young, were charged with manufacturing and possessing meth.

A tip led to the location where two working meth labs were discovered, and Moore consented to a search of the property, according to the press release.

Sgt. Brent Pack and Lawrence County Sheriff Garrett Roberts went to the location in the Mazie area of Lawrence County off Highway 32, near the Elliot County line, where one meth lab was found under the kitchen sink and the other in a corner cabinet in the kitchen, the release said.

Officers also located Coleman fuel, lithium batteries, coffee filters, needles and Suphedrine cold tablets in various locations throughout the house, the release said.

A loaded .22-caliber rifle was found sitting beside the door, the release said.

Both men were transported to Three Rivers Medical Center, where they were decontaminated before being sent to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center.

large tree laying in the curve of the road and obstructing both lanes of traffic.

The tree fell as a result of severe thunderstorms in the area, downing power lines and damaging a guardrail, a press release issued by the Johnson County Sheriff's Office said.

Beverly Maynard of Tomahawk in Martin County was traveling on Rt. 1428 when her vehicle struck the tree, the release said.

Moments later, John E. Pelphrey of Hager Hill, driving in the same direction as Maynard, struck her stopped vehicle from behind, the release said.

Rt. 1428 was closed for several hours as emergency workers cleared the tree from the road and removed the downed power lines and other roadway debris.

The Van Lear Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

No injuries were reported at the time of the incident.

Shadow tends to follow people around looking for a handout or maybe just the chance to get petted.

VanHoose explained that Shadow used to be a part of a petting zoo and that she is just like a little dog following people around.

Weddings are often done at the Fishtrap Church and there is also a place for a reception.

"Lots of the people like to get married outside the church," manager Russell Honeycutt said. "I'd say it's about 60/40."

The church has pews inside, with one dating back to 1851. Portable oil lamps were used for light and a coal-burning, pot-bellied stove was used for heat.

There are also quilt patches hanging on the wall that Honeycutt explained were used for the Underground Railroad, helping to mark the direction of safe travel for those who were trying to use the path.

In addition to the church, other buildings include the McKenzie family cabin, a barn and a one-room schoolhouse. The original Lemaster house is being used as a working blacksmith shop. The gardens and fields are surrounded by split-rail fencing and a scarecrow.

Honeycutt said he is "really proud" of the garden and especially the oversized cabbages growing on the property.

"We sell all the crops when it comes time to harvest," Honeycutt said. "We also sell chicken eggs. We just got the chickens and right now we have 28 hens, one rooster and 29 pullets."

Other animals on the farm include goats, pigs and hogs, and a horse.

"We sell billies in the fall," Honeycutt said. "We sell rams and hogs in the fall."

VanHoose said she is also considering ways the Mountain HomePlace can possibly use the horse for photo shoots and possibly obtain a carriage so that they can offer carriage rides.

"I think people would love that," VanHoose said.

The school on the property is known as the McKenzie School and was built in 1890.

The school was also heated by a coal-burning, pot-bellied stove located in the center of the room, and chalk boards are aligned all along the back wall with writing still on the board. Desks are also scattered throughout the room.

"We have someone who is going to come in and put something on that so that it can't be erased, since some of it is from when they actually taught in the school," Honeycutt said.

The Mountain HomePlace also has an amphitheater that VanHoose said she is trying to promote more.

"We are hoping to be able to work on maybe a back to school bash and on Saturday nights, maybe have a family fun night," VanHoose said. "We get our new budget in June, so we will take a look at that and know more about what we can do to make improvements."

The administrative building at the Mountain HomePlace museum is filled with authentic tools, clothing and wares that were used during the 1850's-1875 and also has a gift shop offering visitors the opportunity to purchase a souvenir.

Mountain HomePlace is open April 1-Oct. 31, Monday-Saturday from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and on Sunday from noon-5 p.m, with tours daily.

"We would like to see more people visiting the Mountain HomePlace," VanHoose said. "It's part of our history and it takes you back in time. For some people, this is stuff they have never seen, and for others it's a memory."

Letters to the editor

Editor:

All the members of Whiskers or Wags (W.O.W.) want to extend our sincere gratitude to some very special people who advocated for two voiceless cruelty victims. Even though these victims were animals, the following individual's determination for justice was no less dedicated.

Thank you, Johnson County Attorney Michael Endicott, Johnson County District Judge Susan Johnson, Paintsville Mayor Bob Porter, Paintsville Police Sgt. Mike Roe, Paintsville officers Paul David Witten and Nathan Caudill, members of the Paintsville Fire and Rescue, Highland veterinarian Joe Salyer, Johnson County sheriff's deputy Chris Blair, and all of the concerned citizens that called in reports of two dogs trapped in a van.

In December, two boxers were left unattended for several days bound within the confines of a locked van with the windows rolled completely shut. Several concerned citizens contacted Mayor Porter, who in return contacted officers with the city police. Upon arrival, Sgt. Roe and officers Witten and Caudill made every effort to document the condition of these defenseless animals. At nearly the same time, Deputy Blair searched and located the owner of the vehicle. Officers also notified our group of the location of the dogs so that they could get veterinarian treatment and find a loving foster home until a verdict on the criminal case regarding custody of the dogs could be de reached. Mr. Endicott prosecuted and successfully won the case in district court. The jury recommended that the dogs were not to be returned to the owner. Further jurors recommended that the owner pay a $100 fine and court costs. The total out of pocket expense this owner was out was $253. This was the first cruelty to animals trial ever held in Johnson County.

This victory would not have been possible without the efforts of all of these heroes. Thank you for your commitment in rescuing and protecting these wonderful pets.

HAPPY 81ST BIRTHDAY UP IN HEAVEN, JEWELL PERRY

It has been two years since you went home to be with Jesus up in Heaven.
There isn't a day that goes by that you aren't in our hearts.

You will never be forgotten,
I will always remember your smile and our talks together.
You will have a real good birthday this year,
cause you will have Coleman by your side.
We will miss you both very much,
but we would not want you all back to suffer and be in pain.

Where you and Coleman are now up in heaven,
There will be no more pain and suffering.
You all are free and perfect and with the Lord.

Loads of love,
Your cousin, Bon Bon Williams, Ron Perry and Family, Randy and Kim Perry

5 signs your computer is infected

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

Oh, the not-so-humble computer virus. For decades, it's been making computer users miserable.

It's like the common cold. You'd think someone would have cured both by now. Unfortunately, it looks like computer viruses are just getting stronger and smarter.

In the early days, a virus would delete your files and spread to other computers. It was annoying, but the effects were easy to detect and contain.

Today, in addition to traditional viruses, there are Trojans, worms, ransomware, spyware, adware and plenty of other "wares." The computer industry term for all this is "malware."

Even state-of-the-art computer security can't always keep up with new threats. Of course, everyone should still be running up-to-date security programs. Fortunately, there are excellent free antivirus, spyware and firewall programs. Click here to see my top free security software picks.

Every type of malware does something a little differently. You might not even recognize that your computer is infected. To help you out, here are five signs you can look for.

Pop-up ads

Running into pop-up ads while surfing the Web used to be par for the course. Thanks to pop-up blocking now standard in modern browsers, these annoyances aren't common.

Still seeing pop-ups online from multiple sites? It could be a badly-configured browser.

Seeing pop-ups when your browser isn't even open? It's usually adware, spyware or scareware.

You can usually tell it's the last one if the pop up says "a virus was detected." It will offer you a paid program to remove the virus. Of course, you'll just be downloading even more malware.

Your regular anti-virus might not seem to stop this. In that case, run a scan with a separate anti-spyware program. Click the links to download SpyBot Search & Destroy or Ad-Aware. These can help you get to the root of the problem.

Phantom messages

A dangerous feature of most malware is that it spreads. With always-on Internet, email, instant messaging and social media available, modern viruses have it easy.

Once they're on your computer, they have plenty of options. You might see friends replying to email messages you didn't send. Perhaps you notice a post on your Facebook profile you didn't write.

In most cases, these will have a tempting link. If your friends and family click the link, they're infected and the virus spreads even further.

Keep an eye on your email "sent" folder and on your social network posts. If you see items you didn't send or post, change your account passwords immediately. This will lock out a virus that's stolen your passwords.

Then go to work with your security software. After you've removed the virus, I'd change your passwords again, just in case.

Be sure to let your friends and family know you were hacked. That way they can take precautions for their accounts as well.

Local hospice receives award

PAINTSVILLE – Community Hospice has been named a 2013 Hospice Honors recipient, a prestigious award recognizing hospice agencies providing the best patient care as rated by the patient's caregiver(s).

Established by Deyta, this prestigious annual honor recognizes the top 100 agencies that continuously provide the highest level of satisfaction through their care as measured from the caregiver's point of view. Deyta used the Family Evaluation of Hospice Care (FEHC) survey results from over 1,200 partnering hospice agencies contained in its national FEHC database with an evaluation period of January through December 2012. Deyta partners with thousands of hospice, home health, human services and other healthcare organizations.

Community Hospice's executive director, Susan Hunt, credits the organization's success to the dedicated staff, who provide outstanding patient care.

"We are thrilled to be recognized for high patient/family satisfaction," Hunt said. "We are a very mission-driven organization and providing quality care to our patients and their families is our top priority."

Community Hospice's Paintsville site director, Greta Tackett, RN, said patients and family members can go through many different stages while receiving hospice care and I am thankful to help them through every step.

"It's a privilege for me as hospice nurse to help a family through such a private moment in their lives," Tackett said.

THE KINGFISHER AND God's Promise trails in Inez got a visit from Girl Scouts from Martin, Johnson, and Floyd counties in April.

Girl Scouts enjoy Wildflower Hike in Inez

INEZ — Girl Scouts from Martin, Johnson, and Floyd counties participated in a wildflower hike along the Kingfisher and God's Promise trails in Inez on April 20.

The girls met at the Roy F. Collier Community Center to watch a documentary about the Kingfisher and the adjacent God's Promise Trail, learning how the trails were planned and constructed by local volunteers. Then the girls were guided along the trails by two naturalists, Jim Stewart and Kitty Holbrook. Beautiful wildflowers were in bloom along the trail, providing many photo opportunities. The trail has several footbridges, a waterfall, 180 steps, and the last section of the trail is dotted with fitness stations.

Deb Collier showed the scouts a former coal bank and explained its past significance to the people of Inez.

At the top of the trail, the girls were met with many of the trail volunteers, who showed the girls how to cook soup beans and cornbread over an open fire. After an Appalachian meal, Pa and Ma Clark performed a skit, telling what life was like many years ago for families in Martin County. Girls toured the one-room school and the log cabin before descending back down the trails to the community center.

Scout leaders thanked trail volunteers that made the event possible: Nita Collier, Tammy Goble, Ann Maynard, Sharon Kirk, Riley Maynard, Tom Dials, Evelynn Spence, Ruby and Darrell Clark, Alice Stepp, Sonny Ward, John Haney, Deb Collier, Kitty Holbrook, and Jim Stewart.

Busy Bees honor mothers at May regular meeting

by Shirley W. Lemaster
Publicity Chairman

The regular monthly meeting of the Red Bush Busy Bees was held on Tuesday, May 14, at the Red Bush Community Center with eight members present. As members arrived, each was adorned with a beautifully decorated Derby hat.

President Phyllis Mullins began the meeting with a beautiful reading about mothers, keeping with the Mother's Day celebration for the month of May. Mullins asked a blessing on our food and led prayer. When asked who our true hero was, most answered," Our Mothers." We also considered the thought of who we would most enjoy sitting with, without conversation and still claim as our best friend. Various answers were expressed, some being "Husband, Mother, Friend or Children."

The secretary's report was given by Melanie Cantrell, and Sue Smith gave the treasurer's report. The president reminded the group of several activities which are planned for the month of May, most being county activities. She also reminded everyone to note and submit their Volunteer Service Unit hours to the county extension.

The Busy Bee's June picnic was planned and finalized. A discussion was held concerning the county annual picnic, too. Lesson leaflets were distributed; the topic was "Tips for Conserving Water at Home." Casseroles were the choice of food for May. Several different flavors and textures were offered, plus cakes and pies for dessert.

In June, we will be meeting at Paintsville Lake for our picnic. Bring your swimsuit and join us.

Present for the meeting were Fran Lemaster, Phyllis Mullins, Prudie Bailey, Loraine Harris, Sue Smith, Melanie Cantrell and Gracie, Teresa Kitchen and Shirley Williams Lemaster.

I would like to share the thoughts that Ms. Mullins read to us about mothers: "Your Mother is always with you, She is the whisper of the leaves as you walk down the street. She's the smell of certain foods you remember, flowers you pick, the fragrance of life itself. She's the cool hand on your brow when you are not feeling well. She's the breath in the air on a cold winter's day. She's the sound of the rain that lulls you to sleep, the colors of the rainbow, She is Christmas morning. Your Mother lives inside your laughter. She's the place you came from and she's the map you follow with every step you take. She's your first love and your first friend. Nothing on earth can separate you, not time, not space, not even death."

Highlands takes part in disaster drill

PRESTONSBURG — Highlands Health System recently participated in the "Operation Omega Shield" disaster drill.

Highlands coordinated the drill along with the help of the Health Planning Coalition, which works with various healthcare facilities and organizations in the surrounding counties to help prepare for disaster.

The drill consisted of a first responders' team being called to the decontamination tent, with local volunteers from Prestonsburg High School serving as contaminated patients. Each volunteer was treated as if they were exposed to Anthrax and brought through a decontamination tent to be cleaned. The "victims" where then taken to the emergency room for further "evaluation."

The health system implemented an Incident Command Center in the hospital, where hospital managers served in key roles to organize communication, manage resources, and provide information to the many participants in the drill.

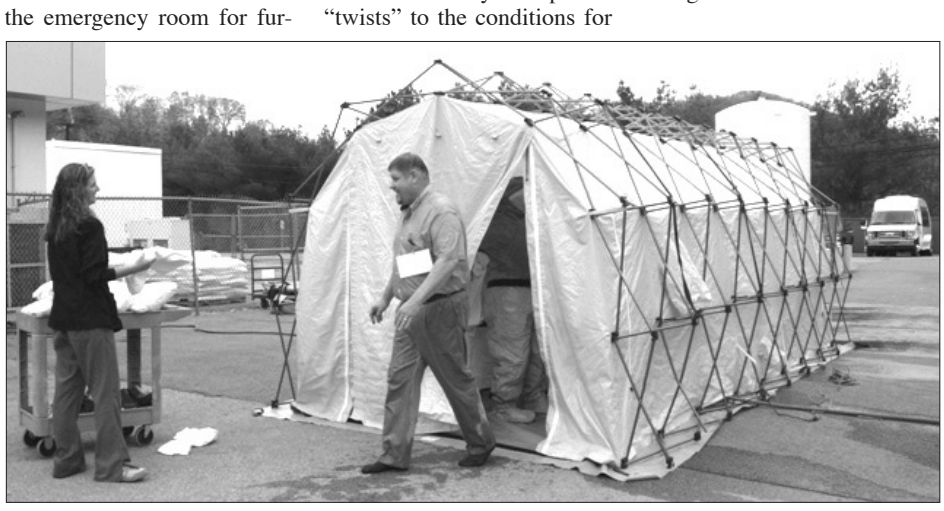

"It is important that everyone be aware of the exercise and its significance to our organization and our community," said Tim Vires, director of the Critical Care Unit at Highlands Regional Medical Center. "Our readiness in times of emergency or disaster is important not only to us, but our families and the people we serve every day."

As the exercise unfolded, there were many unexpected "twists" to the conditions for the exercise. This was intended to create a situation that was as authentic as possible.

"We train and prepare constantly for disasters of any size," said Maxanna Cook, Highlands' spokesperson. "This particular drill included many challenges to test our skills. Employees at every level in the organization got the opportunity to play a part in the simulation. Administrators, doctors, managers, and staff all took this very seriously."

Highlands will participate in the evaluation of the drill to be able to improve how emergencies are handled.

"Preparedness and learning is our goal with these types of exercises," Cook said, "but we had some fun doing it as well."

HIGHLANDS HEALTH SYSTEM joined with the Health Planning Coalition in "Operation Omega Shield," a disaster drill that helps healthcare facilities and organizations implement safety procedures and precautions.

SIGNS: (Continued from A9)

back your account from a virus or hacker

Locked computer

You're surfing the Web minding your own business. Suddenly a scary message appears. It says law enforcement has detected illegal material on your computer. You've been locked out until you pay a fine!

Of course it's a lie. A virus has taken over and is holding your computer ransom. That's why it's commonly called "ransomware."

Some ransomware doesn't even try to be sneaky. It tells you up front that hackers took over your system. You have to pay to get it back.

I don't recommend paying. You won't get your computer back.

Unfortunately, you probably won't be able to run your normal anti-virus program. You'll need a rescue CD. Click the links for the free AVG Rescue CD or Windows Defender Online to take care of the problem.

In some cases, the ransomware actually encrypts your files. If that happens, you better have a recent backup. Even if you get rid of the virus, your files might be lost.

Essential tools and programs stop working

If a computer is misbehaving, most computer users hit Ctrl + Alt + Del. The "three-finger salute" lets you open up Task Manager. This can show you what programs are causing trouble.

Sometimes, you'll hit this keyboard shortcut and nothing happens. Your Start Menu won't open. Nothing happens when you right-click on the desktop. Your security software won't run.

This is often a clue that a virus is messing with your computer. It's doing what it can to keep you from identifying it and removing it.

This is where deep-cleaning anti-malware software like MalwareBytes will shine. If that fails, you'll need to use a rescue CD like I mentioned earlier.

If nothing you do works, it could also be a hardware problem. Most likely it's bad RAM or a failing power supply.

Everything is running fine

I run into many people who don't install security software. The excuse is always the same: "But my computer runs just fine without it. If I had a virus, I'd know."

The simple fact is that you don't know. Modern malware can hide deep in your computer without raising red flags. It will just quietly go about its business.

There are some sneaky viruses that will remove other viruses so you don't get suspicious!

Just because a virus isn't disruptive doesn't mean it isn't dangerous. It could be snagging your passwords, sensitive files or other vital information. The virus could be using your computer to send spam. It could even attack banks and other organizations.

You won't know until your identity is stolen and your bank account is drained. Maybe your Internet slows to a crawl or your service provider shuts down your connection.

Some people never figure it out. There are computers out there that have been sending spam for years. Their owners have no clue.

That's why every computer user, even Mac users, needs up-to-date security software installed. Keep it updated and set it to run regular, automatic scans.

And don't rely on just one program, but run a scan with several security programs at least once a month. What one program misses other programs might find.

Lawrence County Mandatory Garbage Service Message

This is a reminder that Lawrence County does have mandatory garbage pickup. This means that every household should have garbage service with one of the haulers in Lawrence County. If you do not have service please contact my office and we will provide you the telephone number for one of the haulers. By failing to have garbage service you could face a citation.

No one, at any time, should be taking their household garbage to the County Garage Transfer Station. We have installed cameras throughout the area and will be monitoring this closely. Anyone caught disposing of household garbage will be subject to fines and/or jail time.

The following contains contact numbers for each garbage hauler permitted to provide service within Lawrence County and some of the rules regarding service, as stated in the Solid Waste Ordinance #91-0007:

Hall Sanitation – 606.369.6856

Perkins Sanitation – 606.652.9716

Marcum Sanitation – 606.652.4984

Moore Sanitation – 606.673.3173

Apple Valley Sanitation – 606.789.5980

Thompson Sanitation – 304.648.5865

Current rates for service are $16.00 per household or $12.00 for anyone 62 & older. All garbage storage areas should be kept clean at all times, this is the owner's responsibility. No hazardous waste (paint cans, tires, etc.) will be picked up. Yard waste (limbs, leaves, etc.) disposal is the responsibility of the homeowner and will not be picked up by your garbage hauler.

Any old appliances can be disposed of at the Lawrence County Garage Transfer Station, Monday – Friday 8 a.m. – 4 p.m. or you are permitted to dispose of said items on Free Dump Day. This service is provided on the last Friday and Saturday of every month, except when that weekend falls on a holiday then the service date will be the Friday and Saturday prior to.

The PRIDE program is a tremendous help to counties across our state in providing funding and supplies to assist with litter control, but without your help we cannot achieve our goal to keep Lawrence County clean.

Get Up, Pick It Up, Keep It Up! Help us keep Lawrence County Clean.

Thank you,

Lawrence County Solid Waste Board
